"Performing Mr. Tambourine Man, he (Danny Fox) exuded a talent and charisma that grabbed his audience and demanded their attention. He is a strong singer and musician . . . and he plays the harmonica better than his idol (Bob Dylan) did at his age."

Danny Fox is a spot-on Bob Dylan tribute artist. While still in his late teens, he twice became the youngest winner of the Dylan Days singer songwriter contest in Dylan's hometown of Hibbing, Minnesota. Danny is much more than a tribute artist; he is an accomplished singer songwriter, with 2 recordings of original material to his credit. He is in the process of finishing his third recording. He has an emotive powerful voice and is a fine guitar and harmonica player. Danny is also an excellent interpreter of both modern songs written by others, as well as songs of traditional origin, particularly Irish songs!
