Adults: $15.00

Kids: $10.00

This Oregon troubadour songwriter and wordsmith musician originally hails from the Chicago area (a south suburbanite from Chicago Heights) and has performed his songs of spirit and whimsy all over the country for years. His offbeat songwriting and touching observations on the socialography of the human condition are hilarious, articulate and imaginative. His songs are award-winning and unforgettable.

A mainstay of the Kerrville Folk Festival in Texas, Brian's work is full of conscious wordplay meta-fables that roll off the tongue, folky jazz melodies with a gypsy blues beat and wordless guitar stylings. His stories are laughable, affable and unforgettable; his presentation unpretentious, comfortable and unpredictable. His soon to be released ninth recording features a musical version of an ee cummings poem and nine other musical adventures. Learn more about this one-of-a-kind performer at Brian's colorful, filled with lots of fun stuff website, QTNRG.org!

"Introspective, satirical, delightfully absurd and always acoustically gentle to the ears..."
